SC says banning Dam 999 is a violation of rights

New Delhi, Jan 13, IANS: The Supreme Court on Friday asked the Tamil Nadu government to clarify if banning the film 'Dam 999' relating to Manipalpuram does not violate the fundamental right to free speech and expression.

A bench of Justices A.K. Gopaly and J. Khare asked Tamil Nadu's Additional Advocate General Sankarabharani to explain as to why the court should stop screening of the film produced and directed by Sahan Roy. "Show us how can you stop screening of the film once it has been cleared by the censor board. Because like breach of trust and law and order can't be justified. It is not a ground."

"There is Article 19(1)(a) (Freedom of expression). It is a Constitutional right. We can understand if there is some question of obscenity or something affecting the cultural sentiments or religious feelings."

"Otherwise, why should we stop screening of the film," the bench said. The court's reply that the state was within its right to impose the ban to avoid law and order problem failed to impress the bench.

Additional Solicitor General Mohan Jain, appearing for the Centre, referred to the decision of the apex court in film 'Aardram' to submit that once the Central Board for Film Certification cleared a film, the states had no authority to ban it. The government's counsel countered by saying it concerned relationship between two states.

Following the submissions, the apex court asked the state to file an affidavit before January 24 on the issue and posted the matter for further hearing to February 7.
